

Keith Philip Allison MBChB, MD, FRCS (Eng), FIMC RCS (Ed), FRCS (Plast)
Consultant Reconstructive and Aesthetic Plastic Surgeon

Born in Birmingham UK, married and living in North Yorkshire. I attended Sheffield University Medical School, qualifying as a doctor in 1992. Basic Surgical Training took me to Stoke-on-Trent, as the then Pilot National Trauma Centre, achieving the general surgical fellowship (FRCSEng) in 1996. I returned to the West Midlands to continue my career in Burns and Plastic Surgery, passing the FRCS(Plast) in 2002. I have also worked as a pre-hospital (BASICS) trauma care doctor for West Midlands Ambulance Service being awarded the Queens Jubilee Medal for services to pre-hospital care. I co-owned an Events Medical Services company running hospital and first aid facilities at events ranging from motorsports to music festivals.

I completed a clinical research / doctorate in the medical application of lasers (MD). Prior to taking up my consultant post in the UK I gained additional training in microsurgery and oncology reconstruction in Toronto, Canada and was one of the first plastic surgeons in the UK to undergo a formal aesthetic / cosmetic surgery training at the McIndoe Surgical Centre, East Grinstead.

I have a wide-ranging general plastic surgery practice in the NHS based at The James Cook University Hospital. My special interests there are in skin cancer, burns, trauma and cancer reconstruction (particularly breast reconstruction).

For 12 years I ran a successful Cosmetic Surgery practice in Teesside. I performed facial, nose and eyelid rejuvenation surgery, breast surgery and body contouring surgery.

I now provide expert witness advice and reports for the GMC, Medical Defence Organisations and legal firms and I hold the Cardiff University Bond Solon (CUBS) Medico-legal Expert Witness Train Certificate in (2018).
